Check if you need to pay the High Income Child Benefit Charge

We're asking you to check if you need to pay the High Income Child Benefit Charge (HICBC) for the 2022 to 2023 tax year.

If you've already paid the charge, or you've already checked you don't need to pay it, you can ignore this letter.

What you need to do by 30 September 2024

Please use the information included with this letter to check if you need to amend your 2022 to 2023 Self Assessment return.

You may have to pay this charge, even if it's your partner who claims the Child Benefit. If your partner is the higher income earner, they may be liable to the charge.

You must pay this charge if your adjusted net income is over £50,000 for the tax year ending 5 April 2023 and in that tax year (both of the following):

- you, or your partner, got Child Benefit payments (while you were partners)
- your adjusted net income was higher than your partner's adjusted net income

Your adjusted net income is your total taxable income, less certain tax reliefs and before deducting any Personal Allowances. For more information, go to GOV.UK and search 'adjusted net income'.

What you should know about HICBC

The Budget on 6 March 2024 increased the HICBC income threshold from £50,000 to £60,000. This will apply to tax returns from the 2024 to 2025 tax year.

If you're the higher earner, check you included the correct amount of Child Benefit in your 2022 to 2023 tax return
