

- Samuel Lowell Price was a founding member of the Institute of Accountants in London (1870), a
- the Institute of Accountants in London (1870), a member of its first Council and a member of the ICAEW's first Council.

  2. Edward Whittaker was a member of the first permanent general Council of the Society of Incorporated Accountants.

  3. Edwin Waterhouse set up in practice on his own in 1864. He was president of the ICAEW 1892-94; his son, Sir Nicholas Edwin Waterhouse kee, was president 1928-29.

  4. Miller, Monkhouse, Goddard & Co petitioned the Institute of Accountants in London in 1871 to change its rules so as to admit provincial
- change its rules so as to admit provincial
- accountants. The petition was successful, and in 1872 the renamed Institute of Accountants became
- George Edwin Swithinbank was a member of the first Council of the ICAEW. Thomas Galland Mellors was president of the ICAEW 1924-25. 6.
- Arthur Lowes Dickinson was a leading figure in the development of the American profeyypon. Clare Smith was president of thehICAEW 1932-Comma omitted when heading redesigned to fit smaller sheet of notepaper necessitated by the War.

History of the firm: the first fifty years 1850-1900, G E Richards, 1950. The Reporter, Price Waterhouse, No 50, December

The first 100 years 1867-1967: Howard Smith Thompson & Co, 1967. Dictionary of Business Biography, Butterworths, 1986.

The history of the ICAEW 1870-1965, Heinemann, 1966

A history of The Northern Society of Chartered Accountants, S A Middleton, 1982. ICAEW List of Members 1881-1988. Information supplied by Price Waterhouse.